

Quantifiers

Quantifiers give the number of given nouns.

A Little (uncountable)

- There's a little coffee left if you want some.
- I've got a little time. What's up?

Little (Uncountable)

- There's too little time to finish the project. It's impossible.
- You have very little to do with this investigation. You can go.

A bit (Uncountable)

- You've got a bit of sauce on your face.
- There's a bit of an issue with the server. (Exaggeration)
- I think you're being a bit too critical of the students.

Not Much (so much, too much, how much) (Uncountable)

- How much are they? Not much.
- I don't have much money left after my trip.
- You've got way too much time on your hands.
- There's so much work to do. We'll never finish.

Enough / Not enough (countable and uncountable)

- There's enough beer for everyone. Help yourself.
- If there isn't enough cat food, go buy some more.
- We don't have enough cups!
- That's enough. You've made your point.
- $20? That's not enough!

A lot / Lots (countable and uncountable)

- I've got a lot of good ideas, but nobody wants to listen.
- There's lots more snow coming tomorrow.
- You're asking a lot of questions today.

- A lot of people don't like classical music.
- I used to remember lots of my dreams, but now I don't.

Many (countable)

- I've got many good ideas.
- There are so many buttons! I'm confused!
- Too many cooks in the kitchen spoil the broth.
- There are many ways to skin a cat.

Some (Countable and Uncountable)

- I've got some suggestions about your videos.
- You need some help with your makeup.
- Pizza? Yes! Let's get some.
- Give it some time. Things will work out.

A couple / A few / Several (Countable)

- It takes a couple of weeks to process applications.
- I need a few minutes to calm down.
- Take a few aspirins.
- After several reminders, he was fired.

Any / None / No

- I don't want any help.
- Did you find any quarters? None.
- I asked for help and got none. (didn't get any)
- I basically got no help.
- You have no time left.
- There are no more books left. Sorry.